

An easy way to create print publications: The InBetween Publisher

Generate publications at the touch of a button without any particular know-how - wherever and whenever you want.

The new InBetween Publisher makes automated generation of catalogues, price lists, brochures or Powerpoint presentations become a child's play!

Simple handling, no training needed

The new web-based tool enables you to simply order the generation of publications from your PC, tablet or smartphone without any previous knowledge. The use of the InBetween Publisher is possible from everywhere and via every common web browser.

Control of all generation processes via web browser

The desired document can be selected via web browser with no training effort at all. You only need internet access in order to recall the clear user interface. Any number of publications can be started simultaneously.

Also it is possible to have several people working simultaneously with the same InBetween Publisher on the same InBetween server from their respective web browser. The process of each individual generation order is thereby indicated.

Selection of all parameters required

Adjust the most important parameters such as type of publication, language and data source as well as required additional information like price or assortment selection and the desired output format likewise via web in order to initiate ad hoc generation. As a matter of course, the interface is adaptable to your individual corporate design. Users log in with their respective login data. According to their individual access right the user surface shows the publication projects assigned to them. The created publications can be downloaded and opened immediately via the InBetween Publisher. Our consulting team can adjust the user surface itself as well as each control element available (such as logo or a reduced range of selection fields) according to your individual desires.

Single user or server version

The InBetween Publisher is available as single user or server version. The server version enables several users to simultaneously control generation processes of the InBetween server via web. Whether in the agency, during field service or at the weekend at home, InBetween is available for you at all times.

Automated DTD creation

When utilizing data sources, InBetween autonomously creates DTDs (document type definition) required for description of the data structure. A „remember me“ option allows the users to save their „login data“.

The screenshot displays the InBetween Publisher web interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the InBetween logo and a 'manager' link. Below the navigation bar, there is a header area with various application icons including Microsoft Word, Quark, Adobe Acrobat, and Powerpoint. The main content area is divided into two sections. The first section, titled 'Auftragsliste', shows a table with columns for 'Name' and 'Startzeit'. The table contains one entry: 'IB_list_vieffaeltig_2014-10-01-14-48.pdf' with a start time of '1.10.2014 14:48:57' and a progress indicator of '100%'. The second section, titled 'InBetween ist mächtig', contains a form for configuring a publication. The form includes fields for 'Projekt' (set to 'IB_list_vieffaeltig'), 'Publikation' (set to 'Neue_Publikation'), 'Sprache' (set to 'DE'), 'Datenquelle' (set to 'inbetween_list_vieffaeltig'), and 'Ausgabeformat' (set to 'PDF'). There is also a button for 'Daten hochladen' and a link for '+ XML-Datei auswählen...'. The footer of the interface shows the copyright notice: '© InBetween Deutschland GmbH 2014'.
